Permissions - iMotions Online

This article explains each of the features associated with the permissions page on iMotions Online.

When you first enter the permissions page, it will appear as in the image below:

This page allows you to select whether the study you are currently working on is available only to:

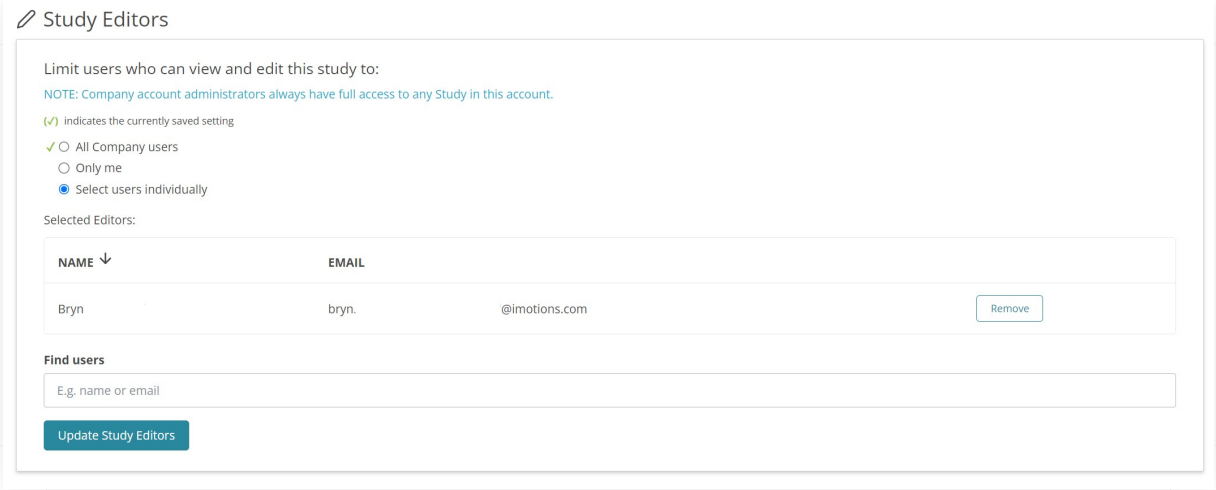

1. All company users. Only yourself and other people at your company / institution - those who are registered under the same account - can view or edit the current study.
2. Only me. The study is only editable or viewable by you. Note however that company / institution account administrators always have full access to any study in this account.
3. Select users individually. Only selected users can view or edit the study. More information about this is below.

Once you have made your selection, press "update study editors".

Select users individually

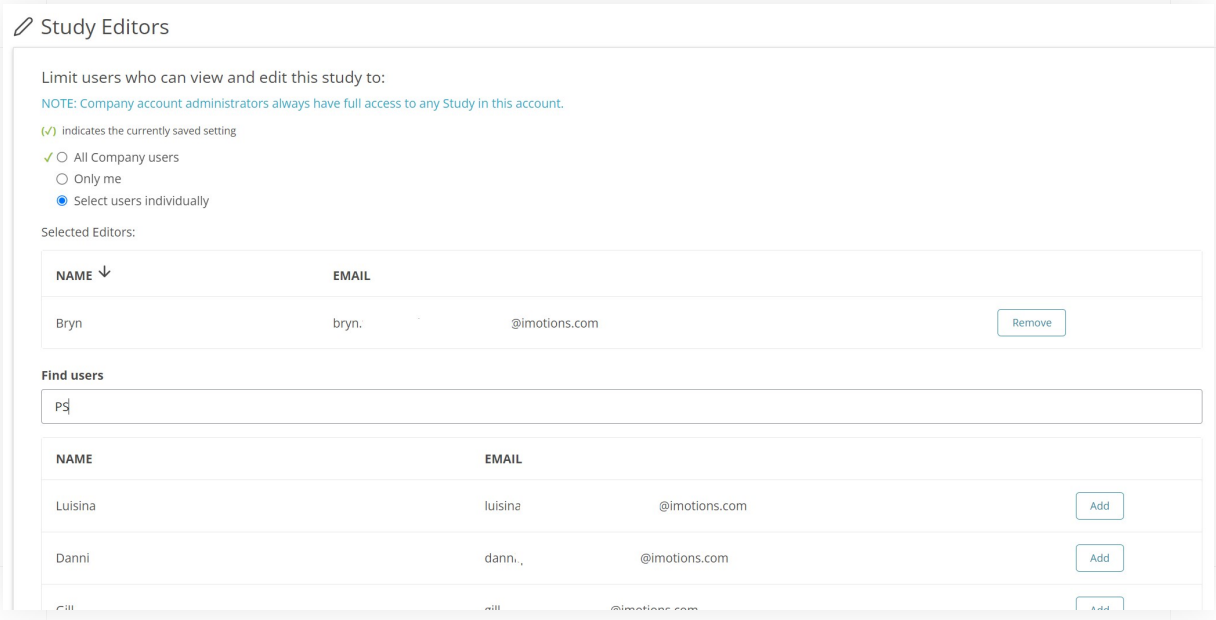

Selecting option 3 will result in the following information appearing:

Confidential © 2023 Redistribution is not permitted without written permission from iMotions

From here you can see who currently has access. Access can be removed through the button on the right.

To select new users, simply enter their name or email address in the search bar. Any matching results from you company or institution will appear in a list below. From here, you can press "add" to immediately add new users to the study. Please note that added users will not be notified about any permission changes.
